

GUNNER

Such A "Good Boy"

I'm excellent at not barking when left home alone, admittedly love a good howling at a passing siren, will joyfully be up for a game of fetch anytime, am a pro at resting in "my place" or crate, am potty trained, am fiercely loyal and will happily help take care of any leftovers. Basically, I am ready to be your best friend.

References

- We can provide the contact info for his trainer, who would be happy to provide his professional opinion for anyone inquiring
- Gunner is a purebred German Shepherd. His father has "papers" and if necessary, we can check on getting Gunner's papers.

$500 Adoption Fee

- Accessories and two training sessions included.

Health & Hygiene

- Registered with the San Diego Humane Society and microchipped
- Up-to-date on vaccinations
- If new home decides to use Nationwide for pet insurance, his policy can transfer - which limits "pre-existing conditions" - of which there are none we are aware of
- NOT neutered

Training & Behavior

- Received professional, private training since 11 weeks old
- During a training session, his tooth snagged his owner's leg. Due to CA guidelines, he does have a "bite record," but the humane society has notes about it being a misguided re-direct... he didn't lunge toward someone.

The Why

We love this boy! While we hoped we could be his forever family, Gunner is simply proving to be "too much dog" for this mama. We have begun to describe him as a Lamborghini dog in our minivan world. We just know under the right conditions, he will thrive! As he has shown times of being reactive (lunging/barking) toward strangers and other dogs, Gunner will need continued training and strict expectations set out for him. He is a "quick learner" and has done well under the right circumstances. Long story short, this mama has trouble re-directing him when he reacts, which in turn has limited his routine, so as to avoid situations where he could choose poorly. We just want more for him than being stuck in our house and backyard. He has been loved and cared for his whole life, and this hard decision has been made because we believe it's what is best for him.
